Course description:

A comparative study of the staging of the supernatural in Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream and Macbeth, with reference to contemporary beliefs in « otherworldly » creatures.

Both plays seem to testify to the changing culture of the time :

- a midsummer night's dream can be interpreted as an attempt to question Elizabethan assumptions about the status of folk tales and classical mythology.

- Macbeth appears to suggest the existence of a supernatural world of witchcraft in the first three acts only to denounce it in the last two.

Such a paradoxical approach might mirror a similarly complex situation in Jacobean England.
